Jamie Fissel

President, Winwood Millwork Inc.

Jamie Fissel's career in the wood working industry began at a young age, spending many summers working with his father learning the trade. Jamie studied carpentry at Tec Voc and began working for a local millwork company right after highschool. In 1993, he went into business with his father and officially started a long, rewarding journey.

Initially starting with a 3,000 square foot shop and focused mainly on residential projects, as the company expanded into commercial work, the size and scope of the company also grew. Today, Winwood Millwork hosts a fully modernized factory including 30,000 square feet of floor space and a staff of 40.

Winwood's focus has always been on the customer and building long lasting relationships. The company prides itself on having long standing business associations with several contractors, trades, and from the design community around the city. Having these connections ensures that Winwood is able continue to provide the best service and product possible.
